

$1,000,000 Winner

by Jeff Nazzaro

A Wilmington couple walked into Lucci's Supermarket to shop last week, just as they have been doing for the last 40 years, and walked out a million dollars richer.

In addition to his weekly food bill at Lucci's last Thursday night, the man bought a $5 Casino Action instant lottery ticket and scratched off a roughly 1-in-5 million dream - one of 20 instant prizes of $1 million to $2 million.

Friday morning, the man beat supermarket owner John Lucci to the store and said words to the effect of "Look at this, but don't tell anybody."

Lucci kept his word to the customer, posting only a flyer on his store's entrance reading "$1,000,000.00 Instant Ticket winner sold @ LUCCI'S SUPERMARKET on Thursday August 3rd to one of our most loyal customers from Wilmington."

Wednesday afternoon, the woman was at the Mass. State Lottery Commission's headquarters in Braintree cashing in the ticket and walking away with the first of 20 checks worth $33,500.

The prize is paid as a 20-year annuity worth $50,000 per year. After taxes and 20 years, the ticket figures to be worth $670,000. The checks, beginning Wednesday, will be paid on the anniversary of the claim, Aug. 9, according to Lottery Commission Spokesperson Deirdre Coyle.

The $1 million winner from Lucci's was the fifth jackpot prize redeemed in the state so far in the Casino Action instant game. It was the third million dollar bingo, to go along with two $2 million winners, Coyle said.

With an additional 150 prizes of $50,000, Coyle said Casino Action offers the highest prize structure in the history of the state's instant lottery games. At $5, it is also the highest priced ticket.

The Casino Action game is broken down into two games, blackjack and roulette, with five chances to win on each. The blackjack game, on the left hand side of the ticket, came up empty. But on the roulette side, in the lower, right hand corner of the ticket, the 5 scratched matched the "House Pick." Undereath that 5 was printed a 1, followed by six glorious zeros.

So who is the million dollar couple? Coyle announced on Wednesday that Mary Centrella, of Wilmington, had redeemed the winning ticket.

McCoy will give liquor license a second shot

by Jeff Nazzaro

Selectman Michael McCoy will be back before the board of selectmen as a private citizen and restaurateur Aug. 21 in another bid to secure a liquor license for his Michael's Place restaurant.

Last summer, McCoy was shot down for the license by a 2-2 vote. In voting against McCoy, Selectmen Diane Allan and Gerry Duggan cited a negative recommendation from the board of health. Selectmen Robert Cain and Chester Bruce voted in favor of the license while McCoy sat out because of the obvious conflict.

The board of health issued the negative recommendation based on the size of McCoy's system. The system, which worked fine, might not have been able to withstand the increased flow of a restaurant with a liquor license, the board said.

At the time of the vote, critics of the license both on the board and in the audience at the board's public hearing stated they would have no problem supporting the license if McCoy had support from all the local boards, according to McCoy.

"Now that I am installing the system, I hope they would be true to their word and support [the license]," he said.

McCoy contends he met the legal requirements of the board of selectmen with his 100-seat establishment, but because of the board of health recommendation, he was turned down.

Monday, the board of health approved final plans for the enlargement of the septic system at Michael's Place. But McCoy said he will not make the investment without a liquor license approved contingent upon the alterations.

"The only reason I'm enlarging the septic system is to get a guarantee for a liquor license," McCoy said. "I'm not about to make an investment in a septic system without improving my business."

McCoy would not comment on the estimated price tag of the new system, but said it was "a large investment" for "a substantial amount of money." He also said he would have to close down his restaurant for a week so that the front parking lot could be torn up and the system enlarged. The move will take refinancing of the restaurant, he indicated, but he hopes that in time, if granted, the liquor license will pay for the enhancements.

If granted the license, McCoy will serve beer and wine and introduce waitress service, which is required under town liquor licenses.

American Legion would sell two house lots

by Jeff Nazzaro

The Wilmington Board of Appeals Monday night continued to Aug. 21 a public hearing to decide whether or not to grant a zoning variance to the American Legion Post 136 for a club-owned parcel of land at the corner of Adams and Church streets.

The Legion, strapped for mortgage payments on their present clubhouse on Bay Street (off Lowell St. near Textron), want to divide the parcel, now zoned R-20, into two R-10 lots for sale to developers. This sale would allow the Legion to buy outright its current mortgage and secure a permanent meeting place.

But many residents around Adams Street don't want the variance granted, and those that do appear to favor it only as a way of keeping the Legion from moving back onto the lot, where their original clubhouse burned down in the mid-1980s.

Still, Barbara Hamilton, who has lived on Church Street for better than 40 years, sees three alternatives for the Adams Street parcel: grant the variance to allow two homes to be built on the property, disallow the variance and build one home there, or have the Legion move back in, a step she said she and her neighbors will consider after the board of appeals decision on the variance.

Hamilton said she and a block of other neighbors, all of whom have owned houses in the area for at least 25 years, favor the R-20 zoning and one new home. That, she said, would maintain the balance of the neighborhood and cause less traffic.

"We're just people who have been in the neighborhood for a long time," Hamilton said. "We would like to see one dwelling, which would be more in keeping with the neighborhood and cause less congestion."

"One dwelling is what is supposed to be there," she added, "not two."

Shawmut, police offer free fingerprinting for kids

by Jeff Nazzaro

It is perhaps a parent's or grandparent's worst nightmare and reminders of its reality are broadcast not only on local news programs, but also milk cartons, community bulletin boards and postcards.

The horror of missing and abducted children poses a very real concern for parents in the 90's, and Shawmut Bank and the Wilmington

Police Department are offering a "Child Safety Protection and Identification Program" as a source of protection for both parents and children.

Wilmington Police will be fingerprinting children accompanied by a parent (or an adult carrying a note from the child's parent) free of charge at Shawmut's Wilmington Plaza branch on Tuesday, Aug. 22 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. as part of the program.

"I just thought it would be something good for the bank to do for the community," said Wilmington Plaza Branch Manager Carolyn Donovan. "And we have so many customers who have little kids, we thought it would be a good opportunity for them to come in, as well as anybody else."

All children are welcome and parents will be provided with a safety folder containing the prints, a Polaroid picture of the child taken at the bank, and a brochure with safety tips, including how to teach a child to react deal with emergency situations.

In addition, Wilmington Police will be talking about safety with the children who participate in the program.

"The parent would have [the safety folder] in case of any emergencies," Donovan said, "and hopefully never will they have to use it."

Wilmington's "wild goose chase"

by Jeff Nazzaro
"Please don't feed the geese!" was the main thrust of a public service announcement from the Wilmington Board of Health Monday in response to townspeople's growing squabbles with the seasonal Canadian invaders.

In what he jokingly referred to as a "wild goose chase," Board of Health Chairman Dr. James Ficociello essentially said that as far as somehow removing the pesky geese, the local board's wings have been clipped by state and federal animal protection statutes.

The geese cannot be moved while enjoying their summer nesting spots and tending to their young, despite the annoyances and potential health risks they pose to two-legged, non-winged inhabitants.

However, steps can and likely will be taken to discourage the geese from returning to their favorite watering holes - in the case of Wilmington, Silver Lake and the area around Douglas Avenue and Palmer Way, to name a couple.

The introduction of natural rivals in the form of foxes, coyotes and swans is one way, but it is costly. The town, according to the board of health Monday, will probably resort to stringing wires across ponds to inhibit the birds' desire to land on those waters. That would be done before the geese return next spring.

Until then, the board said it is OK to chase geese off private property and it is advised that residents stop feeding the birds and keep naturally occurring food sources, such as grass clippings, to a minimum.

Supposedly, the "don't feed, chase" strategy annoys the geese and prods them into finding more hospitable surroundings, though end results in other communities polled by the board suggest otherwise.

For now, one favorite town spot for winged and non-winged Wilmingtonites, Silver Lake, has been ecologically spared from fouling by the fowl. Tests done as little as four weeks ago show very low levels of coliform - or intestinal

- bacteria, according to Public Health Director Gregory Erickson. If those levels become too high, however, the beach there would have to be closed due to the potential health risk.

But in a town as wet as Wilmington, there are certainly many out-of-the-way destinations for geese to go, even if the getting is not so good when it comes to human food handouts. Which is why the board is encouraging residents not too encourage the geese.

"There's plenty of places in town where these geese can spend their entire lives and no one will care," Erickson said.

It's YOUR Money

COLLEGE HELP THE BEST WAY

In today's economy, when a year's college tuition costs more than a family's total income just a few years ago, it's a rare college freshman who doesn't need help footing the bill. Careful research can unearth scholarships, grants and loans. Beyond that, what's a family to do?

When parents and grandparents want to help, they have several options. They can give money directly to the student, up to $10,000 per recipient per year per donor, double that on a joint return. The downside is that money in the teenager's account will limit possible financial aid and there's no guarantee and no control that it won't be spent for something else.

A better option is to pay the educational institution directly. There's no limit on how much can be spent; indeed, there's no gift tax to consider. The gift does not affect the student's financial aid figures and there's no way that Junior can blow that cash!

We'll help you make the most of your money, taxwise. Talk to the accountants at

Remembering the end of the war - Pacific view

by Jeff Nazzaro
Shortly after his discharge from the United States Navy on April 6, 1946, Louis Tsihlis (pronounced SIK-tis), of Faulkner Avenue in Wilmington, who had served during World War II as a motor machinist mate aboard the LSM (or landing ship, medium) 203, wrote the Navy for a blueprint of that craft. Some 46 years later, he returned to those plans and in nine months completed an exact scale model of the ship using paper thin brass and persistence.

But in 1945, Tsihlis was helping complete another successful, and slightly more famous, return: that of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and the U.S. Army to the Philippines, to retake the islands from the Japanese. Tsihlis, who rattles off the key dates of his two year, seven month Navy career with keen precision, enlisted on Sept. 10, 1943, three days before his 18th birthday while war raged across the entire globe.

After boot camp and a stint at diesel training school and the amphibious base at Little Creek, Virginia, Tsihlis left on April 21 for Philadelphia to pick up his ship. Four weeks later, the LSM 203 was commissioned with a crew of 54 enlisted men and five officers.

Following the commissioning, it was back to Little Creek for three weeks of training runs and then another 10 weeks training five other LSM crews aboard the 203. On October 14, 1944, the 203 pulled out and crossed the Panama Canal into the Pacific Ocean, bound for war.

As a motor machinist mate, Tsihlis spent the bulk of his time in the hull of the ship, tending to the throttles, generators and water evaporators - used for producing fresh water.

In December of 1944, the ship reached New Guinea, 1,600 miles southeast of the Philippines, where they picked up men and supplies from Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger's 6th Army. In nine months of heavy fighting, the 6th, dubbed the Alamo Force, had helped MacArthur secure New Guinea as a jump-off point to fulfill his legendary vow for the Philippines: "I shall return."

Carrying trucks, tanks, Jeeps, bulldozers, and everything from lampposts to ammunition, the LSM 203 backed up the infantry, pulling ashore after the naval and air bombardments had cleared a path for the ground forces to land.

LSMs -were shallow-draft, flat-bottomed vessels - "like a bathtub," Tsihlis described them - with ramps at the bow. The ships would lay anchor and plow ashore, lower the ramp, unload their cargo and those machine's crews, and then, with engines churning in reverse and using drag from the anchors, retreat back into the sea.

The 203 did this in combat for the first time on Jan. 9, 1945 - the day of the first U.S. invasion of the Philippines, at Linguyan Gulf on the main island of Luzon. The ship reached shore at 10 a.m. under enemy fire from the beach.

After a long moment's reflection, Tsihlis described his first taste of combat in the single word that has become synonymous with war: "Hell."

The 203 provided support for three more invasions of Luzon. The first was south of Manila, at Nasugbu, on Jan. 31, a maneuver designed to keep the Japanese army from reaching the southern points of the islands.

The third, at Mariveles Bay, near Bataan, on Feb. 15, resulted in the destruction of the 203's sister ship - the LSM 169, which struck a mine in the bay. The 169, which had performed in conjunction with the 203 throughout the invasions, was "blown wide open," according to Tsihlis. The ship didn't sink, but one man was killed and the 169 was permanently disabled.

"We were to their port side when she hit the mine," he recalled. "Needless to say, our ship shuddered too."

The final Luzon invasion was part of a cleanup mission at Legaspi, on the southern most point of the island.

As the Army and Marines were mopping up the bloodiest land battle of the war in the Pacific - the Okinawa campaign - the 203 was supporting the final invasion of the war, an attack on Borneo on June 10.

At 7:00 p.m. on Aug. 15, 1945, President Harry S. Truman signified long awaited arrival of V-J Day with the announcement of the unconditional surrender of Japan. Tsihlis and the LSM 203 were between the Philippine islands of Leyte and Samar, headed back to Subic Bay.

"The Philippines were like one big firecracker that day," Tsihlis recalled of the V-J Day celebration.

With the war's official end, the ship took a brief and well-deserved respite before going back to work, hauling supplies to different locales. On one trip, the 203 transported 80 Japanese POWs and 15 nurses from Mindanao to Manila, bound back to Japan. And on Dec. 7, 1945, four years to the day Japan initiated war on the United States with the bombing of Pearl Harbor, the 203 headed home.

With stops at Guam and Hawaii, the ship entered San Francisco Bay on March 11, 1946, and three months later was decommissioned in Charleston, S.C.

In its nearly two-year Navy career, the 203 carried 73 different crew members without a single death.

"We were very fortunate that we did not lose any personnel because of bullets," Tsihlis said. "We all thank the Good Lord that He brought us all back in one piece."

Time is not so forgiving. With the first reunion of the 203, in 1987 in Lewisburg, W.V., the 23 remaining crew members gathered. Most of the men he hadn't seen in over 40 years, but Tsihlis said he could identify his old shipmates by the sound of their voices or the way they walked.

"You couldn't imagine," he said. "We had one grand time."

Among the attendees was the only man struck by a bullet while on the 203. During an invasion, the crewman, one of the ship's 20-mm gunners, was struck in the back and fell with a shout. Upon examination below deck, only a welt was revealed - he had been hit by a spent bullet, which he proudly displayed 42 years later at the Lewisburg reunion.

Other reunions followed, and in 1992 Tsihlis volunteered to co-host the 47th. It was for that occasion that Tsihlis, who in 1952 put away his blueprints to settle down in Wilmington with his wife, Effie, to raise a son and two daughters, went to work recreating the 203.

For the reunion, 15 men and the wives of two deceased officers stayed at the Days Inn in Burlington. And it was there that Tsihlis unveiled his model for the first time.

Tsihlis memorialized the 203.5-foot ship at an eighth of an inch to the foot with sheets of brass measuring ten one-thousandths of an inch thick. Of the nine months he spent working on the model, 32 hours alone were devoted to crafting an exact duplicate of the ship's bow ramp, including the forging of tiny holes in the brass he could work a pin through.

The details are remarkable, down to the naval flags spelling out "LSM 203" in code, the big 40-mm gun at the stern and the two 20-mm's on each side, and the cartoon depiction of Donald Duck, in traditional sailor's uniform, aboard the Tokyo-bound "Toonerville Trolley," a gift painted on the ship's conning tower by a member of the 6th Army who happened to work for Walt Disney.

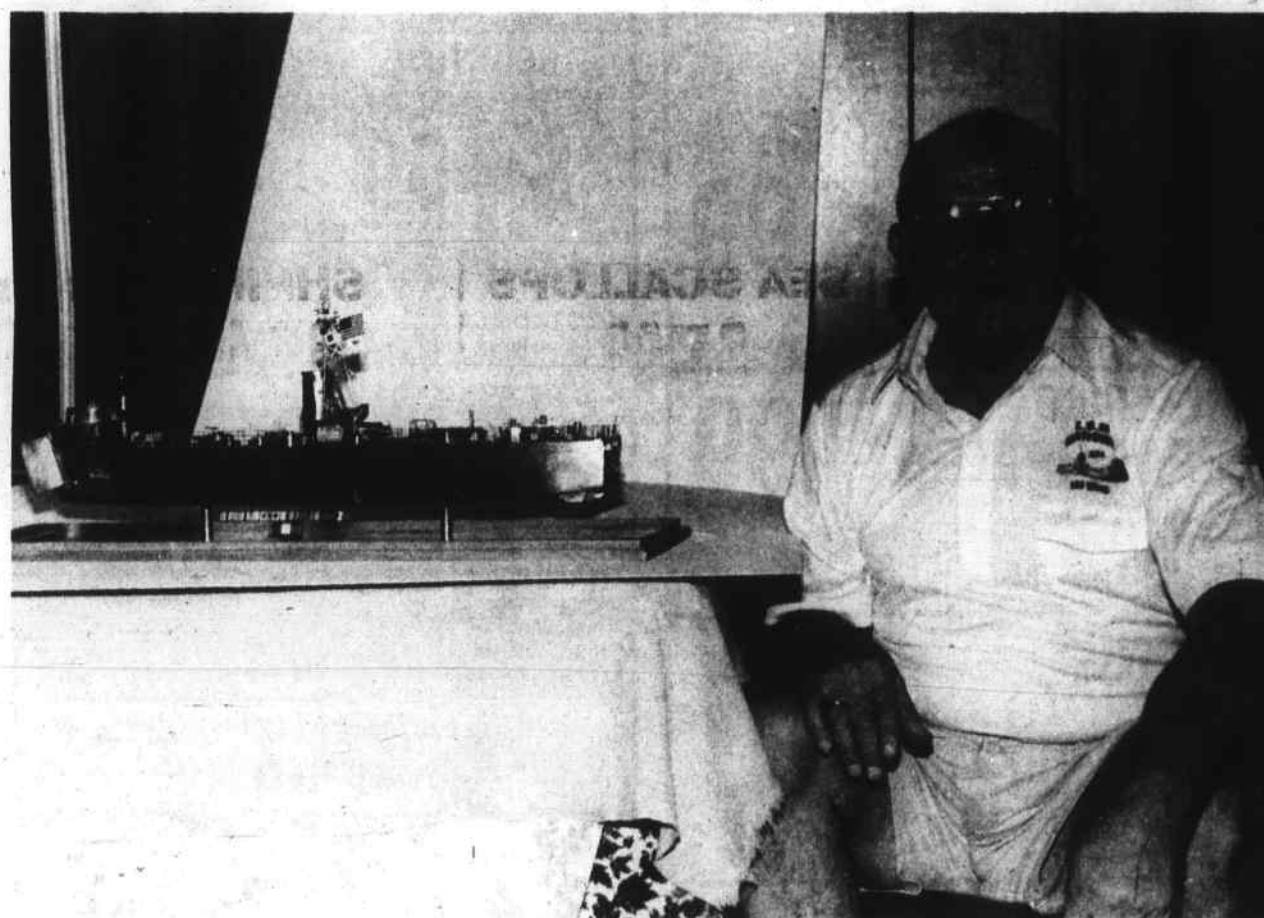

While the model is a sight for anyone to behold, the real test came from the eyes of members of the National LSM Association, whom Tsihlis unveiled his handiwork to in Charleston.

"I received more compliments from guys who served aboard different ships," he said with reserved pride. "I really felt like crawling up into a shell."

Tsihlis plans to one day make a gift of his model to the association, but first he wants to share it with his three grandsons and three granddaughters. Tsihlis also said the donation of the model of the LSM he served his country on for more than two years will be made posthumously.

Fifty years after the end of World War II, he plans on going down with his ship.

Louis Tsihlis proudly displays the scale model of the LSM 203, the ship he served on during the last year of World War II, as a tribute in honor of V-J Day (Aug. 15) to all the men and women who served in the U.S. armed forces during WWII (photo by Jeff Nazzaro).

The Captain saw it in the Atlantic

by Capt. Larz Neilson

It was just about 50 years ago that this writer took over command of the SS Chanute Victory. A new type vessel, it was over 450 feet long and capable of speed of 16 1/2 knots. The ship was berthed in New York, west side.

During the greater part of World War II this writer had commanded ships of the Liberty class. The first vessel had been the Daniel Boone, loaded with 7975.1 tons of ammunition. It was this writer's luck to cross the Atlantic, for the invasion of Africa alone, unescorted.

Later the writer took the Daniel Boone to the Persian Gulf, loaded with military stores for Russia. Those stores were previously being shipped to Murmansk, but too many of those ships were hit by German submarines. The Daniel Boone loaded in Philadelphia, at a pier where the ships for Murmansk had been loading, and superintendent, Capt. Kelly wished me good luck as I backed the Daniel Boone out of the slip.

I told him I would be okay. Capt. Kelly did not know about the new orders, to go to the Persian Gulf. It was the longest voyage of my life, 19,000 miles.

Anyway, a few years later, just about the time of V-J Day, I brought the SS Benjamin Goodhue into New York. I was informed that I would be taking command of the Chanute Victory. The Goodhue had been under my command for over two years, mostly in the Mediterranean Sea.

The Chanute Victory was geared to carry 1800 military troops, but for this voyage the passenger list was about 400, of which about 75 percent were French speaking, French people or Swiss. They had been detained in New York during the warfare.

A Captain Clogston was on board when I boarded the Chanute Victory. He was the son of a man who had been a baker in the Tewksbury Hospital. Captain Clogston informed me: 1) a large number of the French and Swiss passengers were unable to speak English, and 2) the U.S. Coast Guard had just delayed the departure of the Chanute Victory until there was another lifeboat on board.

I had to tell the passengers. Fortunately French is a language with which this writer has no difficulty. The passengers were told to assemble, and the message delivered: There would be a delay of about two hours.

The new lifeboat arrived, and about 11 p.m. the Chanute Victory departed from the pier at which it was docked.

It was a pleasure to command a ship capable of doing 16 1/2 knots instead of the 10 1/2 knots of the Liberty ships. Instead of a voyage of 18-20 days across the Atlantic, it could be accomplished in about 10.

It was also a pleasure to have French people as guests. The captain had some of them at my table for dinner every day. The first port of call was Plymouth, England, where about 25 percent of the passengers disembarked.

Then to LeHavre, in France. The writer was to see that port many times in the ensuing months. LeHavre was the place to which the Yankee soldier were sent to assemble at three camps: 1. Camp Lucky Strike, 2. Camp Chesterfield, 3. Camp Camel, before boarding a transport to New York.

The Chanute Victory generally departed about four hours after arrival. The orders to the captain said that he was to notify New York, within one hour of the day and the hour he would dock at Pier 5, State Island, New York. This was always done.

Frequently the Chanute Victory took German prisoners on the return voyage to Europe, about 800. There were American military police to guard them. The Army was taking no chances.

Those Germans thought they were going home, but they had another think coming to them.

All German prisoners had to work three months in France before they were to be shipped to Deutschland. There was a lot of war damage that had to be cleared up.

This writer never got ashore in LeHavre, except on one occasion when he had to go to an office, somewhere. He went in a taxi and learned a few things.

Thousands of Americans had been in that city. The taxi driver told me that he had but few Americans as passengers, and he added that none of them could speak French.

He was delighted at having a passenger who could. He promised that the next time the Chanute Victory would dock in LeHavre he would come down to the dock so that the writer would have him as a personal driver.

But this writer never returned to LeHavre!

Tewksbury Garden Club picks up Exxon award

The Exxon award is an annual award given jointly by the National Council of State Garden Clubs and the Exxon Corporation. This award recognizes excellence in civic development and roadside beautification. To be considered a garden club must show a long term commitment to a location and have made a significant improvement in the area. The project must include club labor, community involvement and club financial commitment.

This year the Tewksbury Garden Club received the first prize in the Exxon competition. The award includes a check for $500 and a certificate of achievement.

This year the Tewksbury Garden Club also received a second national award. Their annual yearbook of events, "The Blossom," took first honors in the nation for a club of 29 members or less. The yearbook editor was Jackie Stone. This is the first time in more than 10 years that a Massachusetts Club has captured a national yearbook award. Next year we hope to repeat the success in the next class. We have a membership drive underway and we hope to grow to 40 members. Call Jackie Stone 851-9296 for membership information.

Several club members lead the way to the Exxon Award. Yvonne Hall and Sandy Polimeno both represented the club on the town common committee.

The ACE committee, composed of Mary Krause, Cindy Trudeau, Maryanne Swift and Alice Kontos selected the shrubs and annuals, coordinated the wedding, and worked with the DPW staff for three years.

Their efforts, combined with the efforts of all the club members to weed, keep the common tidy and raise funds for irrigation systems resulted in this great honor.

Civil defense seeks new vehicle

by Bill Conlon

Civil Defense.

The very name conjures images of the 1960s, with school children ducking under their desks, and the familiar black and yellow signs pointing the way to fallout shelters.

But the reality of Civil Defense is much different.

Tewksbury, like all towns in the Commonwealth, has an in-house Civil Defense capability. If disaster strikes, Civil Defense becomes the ultimate insurance policy. Rescues and communications are handled by the Civil Defense coordinator, and during the cleanup he handles all the state and federal paperwork.

Lt. Mike Sitar of the Tewksbury Fire Department is the town's Civil Defense coordinator.

In most years, the annual Civil Defense budget is small, and passes without much comment. This year, however, there is a capital outlay included in the CD budget.

Lt. Sitar's official Civil Defense vehicle is a cast-off former police cruiser with 190,000 miles on the odometer. In the new fiscal year's budget, Sitar is asking $25,000 for a new Ford 4-wheel-drive Bronco. He reportedly has the backing of the Town Manager for the purchase request.

Sitar said the former cruiser is packed with ropes, Scott air packs, rescue equipment, lights, tools and radio gear. He has radio equipment to keep him in touch with police and fire departments, and a "ham" radio system to communicate with the outside world in case the town is cut off during catastrophe.

Sitar told selectmen this week that his present vehicle needs a starter and valve work, with the cost of the repairs estimated at $2,500. A new Bronco, he said, could be counted on for 10 years of service.

Voters will get to decide upon the new Civil Defense vehicle at the Special Town Meeting planned for later this year.

Community ed program begins Sept. 25

Tewksbury's Community Education Program will begin the week of September 25, 1995. The fall semester brochure listing the various course offerings should be completed and mailed to every resident's home during the last week of August. They will also be available at each school office in town.

Residents and non-residents can participate in activities which will range from physical or recreational to intellectual or aesthetic development. Most classes meet on Mondays and Wednesdays at Memorial High School. Some courses will meet Tuesday and Thursday and other sites will include the John W. Wynn Middle School, Dewing School, Towne Line Billiards, and the North Meadow Tennis Club.

Registration can be accomplished through the mail or in person, September 11, 12 and 13 from 6 to 8 p.m.

Call Anthony J. Romano at the Office of Community Education, at 508-640-0658.

TMHS Jr. Classical excels

Thirteen students from Tewksbury Memorial High School (TMHS) recently competed at the annual Mass. Junior Classical League Convention at Brookline High School. About 500 classics' students from more than 20 public and private schools from around the state faced off in academic, costuming, art and athletic events. Tewksbury left with two ribbons, a fifth in points per delegate, and a seventh for overall competition.

In academics Nick Solis and Adam Carter ranked second in Latin Reading and Ancient Culture I, and Wayne Cabradilla and George Wolfenden placed fourth in Latin II and Ancient Culture II. In classical dress Kindra Kin won second for her Roman portrayal, and Joe and Ann Lane scored third as Pyramus and This be, the mythological couple. While Ann Lane was the only athletic winner, several TMHS students impressed the art judges. Among the top entries were Wayne Cabradilla (video), George Wolfenden (map), C.T. Kelly and Nick Solis (games).

Two TMHS Latin I students, Alex Lucas and Kindra King, will be attending the National Convention at the University of Kansas from July 30-August 4. They will compete as Mass. delegates with other students from schools across the state.

Moore Employment Inc • 200 Jefferson Rd, Wilmington • (508) 657-6000

Never a quiet moment! While trying to pose with one of the many computers used for training, the clients just wouldn't stop calling. Answering the phone is owner Helen Moore, at the keyboard Carla DiBona with Barbara Steinbrecker looking on.

Especially during a slow and unpredictable economy, when a company's projected sales are soft, there may not be enough sales forecasted to warrant hiring regular permanent employees. However there are sales and production enough to warrant 2-3 months work, therefore, the use of temps is truly the best and most inexpensive way for companies to meet deadlines, etc. The company is relieved of costs to cover for vacations, medical leaves, etc. Over the past 12-years Moore has helped 100's of businesses save thousands of $'s for

* Advertising * Time recruiting * Interviewing * Testing * Checking references * Cmptr training * Layoffs * Co-pd benefits (Med, Dental, Life Ins., Pensions & FUTA contributions, SUTA, Mass State Health) Etc.

Moore's reasonable hourly bill rates cover all mandatory costs, above, including the temp's hourly wage; the temp is a Moore employee and Moore offers HMO medical insurance + a variety of other benefits to its employees.

Small and expanding companies can eliminate the heavy recruiting for hiring permanent people by using the Moore Temp-to-Perm program. "We do all the work." For a specific opening, Moore provides their best person (a second if necessary); submit the resume, set up the interview. The qualified person accepts the assignment as temporary with the option of being hired permanently at a specified time with a small fee paid by the hiring company.

"Our records show over 500 people have been placed either directly or by the temp-to-perm method since Moore started in 1979." Just in the past two months they've placed 8 people into permanent jobs. Helen Moore sees a 20% growth since the 1st quarter of 1992.

Today, the temporary has the best chance of getting hired if a company is the "hiring mode."

"We work very hard in our recruiting process, carefully making decisions in all temp placements as though we were making a direct placement. This takes a great deal of time, effort, energy, costs, etc. We gladly accept this work! That's why we've been successful! We know the value of the temp worker."

Since its opening, Moore Temps has always provided people, not bodies. Moore's commitment to excellence and quality is meeting the customers' requirements at all times, and continuously strives to exceed them whenever possible. Moore's priority is and always will be quality service personified!

Wilmington FD gets assist for tight spaces

The Board of Directors of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce has agreed to assist the Wilmington Fire Department and associated industrial firms of Wilmington to improve the capability of the Fire Department to respond to emergencies in confined spaces. The subject was widely discussed Tuesday afternoon in a special meeting of the Board of Directors.

Mark Bradford of Zeneca Resins was present at the meeting. Mr. Bradford was there as an officer of Zeneca, and not as a director of the Chamber.

A letter from Maurice Bechard of Zeneca Resins had, in part, inspired the meeting. Mr. Bechard asked for the assistance of the Chamber in formulating terms for an agreement between industrial firms in Wilmington and the Wilmington Fire Department in the control of confined spaces, in industry or otherwise, which must be entered on occasions when they are oxygen deficient, or when other crushing hazards may exist.

The majority of such spaces will be found in industry, and in commercial excavations, in tanks and equipment closures. Sometimes such spaces may exist under other emergency conditions, where there is a restricted access, and the presence of a danger to life by threatening atmosphere.

Response to such emergencies requires rapid response of highly trained and specially equipped rescue personnel. Such a response may require a level of training and equipment beyond the resources of the organization whose personnel made the original emergency.

Chief Daniel Stewart of the Wilmington Fire Department was approached sometime ago with a request that the Department provide confined space rescue services. Such response may often require a level of training and equipment beyond the resources of the organization whose personnel made the original emergency.

Chief Stewart agreed, but he asked that his department be provided with training and equipment necessary for maximum effectiveness.

Other industries of Wilmington which were thought to have confined spaces were solicited for help. It was at this time that Mr. Bechard of Zeneca was asked to assist.

Together, the other industries have arrived at an estimate of $36,000 for the first year in such an effort, and $8,000 a year for subsequent years. Pledges of $19,000 have been obtained from the Wilmington industries.

The Wilmington Fire Department has now scheduled members for training, beginning this fall. The completion of the training has been slated by the end of the year.

Many Wilmington industries are now committed to the program. The list includes Koch Membrane Systems, Charles River Breeding Laboratories, Raffi and Swanson, Lightolier, Olin Chemical Company, the AGFA Division of Bayer, Ametek, Aerospace, Zeneca Resins, Altron Inc., and Industrial Protection Products, Inc.

Mr. Bechard of Zeneca Resins and other participants are actively pursuing the participation of 20 other Wilmington firms.

The directors of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce have agreed that the guidelines for the combined effort must be clearly communicated to all, on a suggestion from Director Ray Forest, and further that there should be a Safety Health and Environmental Manager.

They further agreed that, like the Ballardvale Fund which the Chamber operates, there must be a check on the costs, to be provided by the Chief of the Wilmington Fire Department, or the Deputy Fire Chief.

Dear Jane,
 Thanks so much for suggesting the cruise. We had a fantastic time. I would do it again in a minute! Wilmington senior topics

Long, hot summer
 All of us are aware of the fact that this summer has been extremely hot. This type of weather has an effect on all ages, but it can pose a health threat to the elderly. When we age, our bodies become less effective in dealing with prolonged heat. Preventive measures should be taken in order to avoid heat stress. Be careful, especially if you have a medical problem that requires you to take prescription drugs. They can make you even more vulnerable to heat stress. Warnings of heat stress could be the loss of appetite, lack of energy, dizziness, confusion, headaches or chest pains.

To prevent heat stress, use air conditioners or fans, head protection if you are going out of the house, avoid outside exercise or yard work, drink plenty of fluids, stay inside the house especially during the hottest time of the day. If you do not have air conditioning or fans, pull your shades down and stay in the coolest part of your home, take cool showers or baths and put on light clothing, avoid the use of any type of alcohol during very hot weather. If you experience any symptoms of heat stress call your doctor right away.

The senior is air conditioned throughout. We are open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily. If you do not have transportation to the center, call us at 657-7595 after 9 a.m. We will have the minibus pick you up between medical runs.

Program attendance is good
 All of the classes and programs have been well attended so far this summer even though the temperature and humidity outside was almost unbearable. Why not come and join your fellow seniors getting their exercise Monday, Wed., and Fri mornings from 10 to 11 in a nice cool environment.

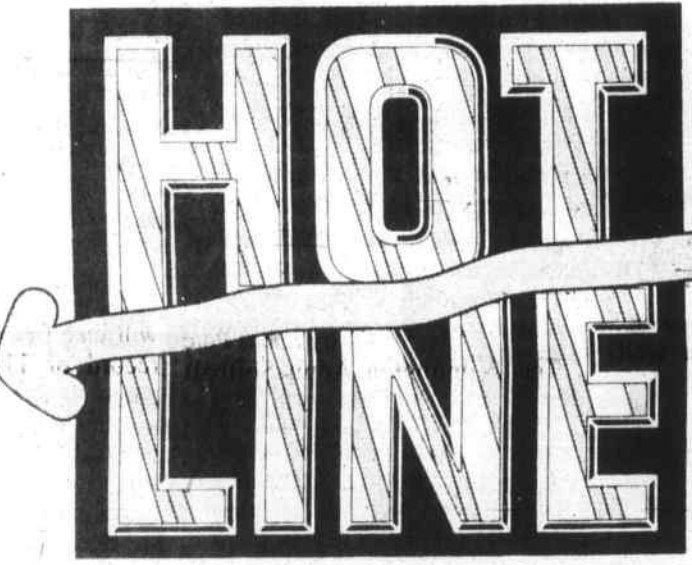

Art class
 We have a great group on Monday afternoon in our art class. Wednesdays the craft and ceramic classes were well attended and the nurse was kept busy checking blood pressures. Fridays a large group played bingo with no thought of the heat outside. These seniors, of course had air conditioned cars that brought them to the center. Again - if you do not have transportation to the center, if only for a cup of coffee and donut in the kitchen, call the center and every attempt will be made to accommodate you between medical runs. Summer is not over yet and we will still have a few more hot days with temperatures in the 90s.

Whist on Monday
 Next Monday whist will be played in the function room starting at 1 p.m. This is another way of getting away from the heat. Tuesday the commissioners meeting will be held in the function room starting at 1 p.m. we will have as our guest Dr. Kevin Wexler. He will be speaking on treatments related to pains in the spine, hips, legs, knees, ankles, feet, and tingling or numbness, stomach disorders, constipation and bladder problems that can be corrected without surgery. The doctor will demonstrate how this can and has been a successful treatment. We all have a pain or ache that we wish would go away. Come to the center next Tuesday, August 15 and listen to Dr. Wexler.

Our state Senator, Bruce Tarr will be at the town hall Thursday afternoon, Aug. 10 from 3:30 to 5 and on Friday morning, Aug. 11 from 9 to 10:30. If you have any questions or concerns on state programs that will effect you as a senior citizen, especially the meals programs or Medicaid this is an opportunity for you to take your comments to the Senator, he will be voting for or against these programs. This is the reason he is spending two days in Wilmington, in order to get some input from our residents on how we want him to vote. Try to be in the town hall Thursday or Friday to listen to Senator Tarr.

Bamberg coming home August 16

by James Pote

Instead of trying to stop goals, Joe Bamberg is now trying to reach new ones every day.

Four weeks ago, Joe was gearing up for another all-star year as the goalkeeper for the Wilmington High School varsity boys soccer team.

Three weeks ago, he blacked out after running from a wasp nest and he found himself in a hospital not being able to move. That is when he thought he might have been paralyzed for life. His first new goal, not being paralyzed, has been accomplished already.

Two weeks ago, he was recovering from his third surgery in less than a week. He accomplished his second goal when he gained some feeling in his legs.

As of Monday evening, his next goal is to be able to walk again. There is no guarantee that he will, and no timetable of if and when he will reach that milestone. Joe Bamberg is going to give everything he has to find a way to accomplish this major feat.

"I'm doing pretty well. I've already come along way," said Bamberg in a telephone interview on Monday night from his room at Christ Hospital Medical Center in Oaklawn, Illinois.

"I have every faith that I'm going to walk again. I know the healing process will take a while, but I'm going to make do until it happens."

He went on to credit family and friends with helping in his recovery to date.

"The support from everyone is just unbelievable - and that has kept my spirits up. My family has been really good. I have talked to a lot of my friends and I just can't wait to be back home to see everyone ... and hopefully they will visit me" while in physical therapy/rehabilitation.

During the interview, Joe gave his description of what he could remember from the accident. He said his grandfather was cutting a tree branch and he told his grandson to step away while he was cutting. As Joe did, he noticed a wasps nest and he started to run from it. He then caught his ankle, which caused him to fall, hyperextending his back and breaking the P-4 vertebrae.

Originally it was thought that Joe severed his spinal cord. But, after the second operation on his back, the doctors found that he smashed a little part of it but the fluid throughout the spinal cord was fine - nothing was cut or broken, which comes as great news.

Right now, Joe is going through simple therapy exercises at the hospital such as weights and sitting/balance - the latter is extremely important with his long flight home, which is scheduled for Thursday, August 16th. The flight will be very long and uncomfortable for the 16-year-old, but according to Joe, going back home and seeing all of his friends will make it worthwhile.

"I'm really excited about coming home. It's just unbelievable all the cards, letters and phone calls that I have received. I want to thank everyone for everything they have done. My family, my girlfriend and my friends have been just really great through all of this and I don't know how to thank them all," Bamberg said.

He also couldn't believe the near $1,000 that has already been raised by his friends to help his family with the medical costs, nor could he believe all of the caring people.

Joe realizes that there will be a long road ahead of him. He also knows that there will be many adjustments he and his family and friends will have to make. Just talking to him, his spirits alone, seem enough to make him well again.

Having seen him compete on the soccer field, this writer knows that Joe Bamberg will reach his goals.

The Wilmington 14 and under girls A.S.A. softball team won its tournament they participated in this past weekend and here is the celebration after they got the final out of the game. Millbrook Day School will take on Leavitt/Miceli in playoffs on Sunday

by James Pote

The Wilmington Adult Softball League is in its final week of play this week, with playoffs starting Sunday evening at seven o'clock.

The schedule of the playoff format for all four leagues has yet to be determined - depending on this week's results.

The playoff schedule will be double elimination for all leagues. The pairings of the opening rounds are very interesting. In the Over 35 League, Industrial League and the Slow Pitch Co-Ed League, teams one and two will have a bye. Teams three and four will play each other and that winner will face the second place finisher. Teams five and six will square off with the winner facing the number one team.

Finally, in the Open Modified Division, teams four and five will play each other and they will face the number one team. Teams two and three will also battle it out in the opening round.

Going around the horn, starting in the Modified Division, the number one slot appears to be taken by Pizza Mia/Roger's Radiator. Slots two through four are all pretty much even with McHugh Tile, Leavitt/Miceli and 3 Sons Contracting all with very similar records. Millbrook Day School will face the fourth place squad in the opening round. The final standings will be known on Thursday night.

In the Open Co-Ed Slow Pitch League, North Wilmington Shell and Norm's squad has to face each other twice this week and those outcomes will determine a lot. If NW Shell wins both games, they will take first place with an overall record of 11-4. If Norm's wins both games, and Northeast Development wins their game on Wednesday night, they will be tied with a 10-5 record with NW Shell at 9-6. If that happens, Norm's would break the tie since they have beaten NE Development two out of three games. If the teams split, NE Development would break the tie with NW Shell because they beat them three times.

Did you get all of that? Shifting gears to the Over 35 League, the Lions Club have started a winning streak of their own to push Uptown Deli out of second place. Are they for real? That will only be known in the playoffs where they always seem to play a lot better.

However, Rocco's appears to be the frontrunner. If the season ended today, they would face the winner of Shea's Concrete and Stelio's. Charles Auto Body and Uptown Deli would square off if the season was already over and that winner would face the Lions.

The schedule is still up in the air but presumably, the Modified Division will play two games on Sunday and two on Tuesday. The Over 35 League has their final games set for Monday night, so no playoff action on that day.

The Industrial League will open their playoff schedule on Monday and carry thru Thursday will all games at 5:30. It's not known yet when the Slow pitch and Over 35 playoff games will start. For last week's game results turn to page 14.

Five more inducted into WHS Hall of Fame

The Board of Directors of the Wilmington High School Athletic Hall of Fame has announced the selection of the fifth class of inductees. There were five members selected for this prestigious award:

A special team award will be presented to the 1939 football team. Anyone who was on the 1939 football team or who knows of someone who was, is urged to contact Robert Surran, chairman at 508-658-5989.

Hall of Fame inductees are recognized as outstanding individuals who have made a significant contribution in the field of athletics as a participant or coach at WHS. To be eligible, a participant must have been graduated from Wilmington High School for a period of at least ten years.

The induction dinner will be held Saturday, Sept. 23 at the Sons of Italy Hall, Wilmington at 7 p.m. Tickets are $20 per person and can be purchased at WHS principal's office (694-6060), Winston's Coffee Shop, or by calling Jack Cushing at 657-7002.

Jones going to England

Eric Jones, a senior at Wilmington High School, has been chosen to join players from five other New England states in August on the Northeast Soccer Club's eleven day tour of England and Scotland.

The tour will kick off in London where the team will be trained by licensed English coaches, play a series of matches against premier youth teams and attend professional soccer matches in addition to visiting many of that city's famous historical sites and attractions.

The tour will conclude in Glasgow and Edinburgh where, along with sightseeing, the team will play against Scottish teams.

Sinopoli throws two shutouts - in two different leagues

Open Modified Division
Pizza Mia/Roger's Radiator 13
3 Sons Contracting 0
 Behind the two-hit shutout by Billy Sinopoli, PM-RR defeated 3 Sons Contracting 13-0 in Wilmington Adult Softball play of this week.

PM-RR bats were red hot as usual and Tommy Aprile (4-5), Bobby Aprile (3-4), Bobby Beals, John Nolan and Billy Sinopoli (all 2-4) lead the offensive charge.

Roy Bromander and Steve Brander were the only two batters for the 3 Sons to get a hit off Sinopoli.

McHugh Tile 20
Millbrook Day School 4
 McHugh Tile busted out the 4-1 lead with four runs in the fourth and 12 more in the fifth to take Millbrook by the slaughter rule.

Rob Santos, Bob Ducharme, Billy Woods all had three hit nights, while, Gerry O'Reilly contributed with two to help his own cause out on the hill.

As for the losing effort, Bobby Surran pitched a great game - defense killed his brilliant performance. He also had a productive night at the plate with two hits including a double. Bobby Hogg, John Marsi and Chris Sullivan combined to go 5-7.

3 Sons Contracting 12
Leavitt/Miceli 6

With the score noddad at 7-5 in favor of 3 Sons after four innings, 3 Sons scored five runs in their next at bat to overcome LM.

Barry Hanson and Rick McCully led the offense for the winning team as they combined for five hits, including a triple and three rbi's.

Scott Richards had two hits in the losing effort, while also driving in two teammates.

Pizza Mia/Roger's Radiator 22
Millbrook Day School 3

After a 5-2 lead thru the first two innings, PM-RR scored 16 runs in the next two innings for the win.

However, this game was the tale of the tape for PM-RR as they smacked out six homeruns including two from John Nolan and single ones from Bobby Beals, Bobby Aprile, Mike Herra and a grand slamme by Mike Alomardo. Those five combined for 13 hits and 15 rbi's.

Lou Cimaglia had three hits including two doubles in the losing effort.

Leavitt/Miceli 18
McHugh Tile 15

It was all McHugh Tile early on in this extra inning affair as they took a 6-2 lead after three and a 11-6 lead after six. However, in the top of the seventh, LM scored seven of their own to take the 13-11 lead. And then McHugh Tile scored two in their half to tie the game up and send it to extra innings.

In the eighth, LM scored one run and McHugh Tile retaliated with a run of their own in their half. Onto the ninth - LM scored four and McHugh Tile scored one on a solo home run by Rob Santos. That's the way the ever lasting game ended with a 18-15 outcome.

Eric Murray was 4-5 with his impressive bat in the victory, while, Gerry O'Reilly, Danny Santos and Billy Woods were a combined 11-14 in the losing effort.

Open Co-Ed Slow Pitch
Norm's 23
Northeast Development 19

In a slugfest, Norm's started out of the gate with a 16-4 lead after the first two innings. However, NE scored two runs in the fourth, fifth and seventh along with five in the sixth to make things interesting. But, to no avail, Norm's squeaked three runs in their sixth inning to put the icing on the cake.

Sean Keogan, Dennis Walsh, Steve Scanlon and Pat Nally led with the bats for Norm's squad with a combined effort of 10 for 13.

But, Dave Murray, Dick Hersom, Mike Mercuri, Jamie Pote and Mike King matched those numbers as this quintet combined for 17 for 20 with three doubles and three triples.

North Wilmington Shell 9
Robarge's 5

The husband and wife team of Jay and Melissa Barrett put their bats together to lead their team to victory with both of them having 2-3 nights. Tim Moran was the winning pitcher.

Don Robarge was 2-3 for Robarge's.

Northeast Development 24
Townsend Welding 9

Once again, NE clubbed their way with another win as they did their own share of running...and running and running around the bases.

NE was led by Mike King, Dick Hersom, Jamie and Nancy Pote, John O'Reilly, Joe Viera and Chris

Wright who combined for an amazing mark of 18 for 24, which included four baggers by O'Reilly and Viera and five doubles.

Carl Townsend and Jenn Murray were both perfect on the night with 3-3 and 2-2 performances, respectively for TW.

Over 35 League
Lions Club 9
Uptown Deli 8

In the bottom of the eighth inning, Lions Club scored a run to overcome the powerful Uptown squad to take second place in this extra marital game.

Jim Swieczynski, Ken Fiendel, Scott Aldrich and Mike Winn all had two hits each for the Lions.

Joe Carvalho and Dana Gilardi both were 3-5 for Uptown Deli.

Charles Auto Body 15
Shea's Concrete 7

Kevin French and Jimmy Hatchey led the eight run fourth inning for Charles as they both had big hits in their combined effort of 5-7.

John Pellerin had two hits in the losing cause.

Rocco's 15
Stelio's 0

Billy Sinopoli collected his second shutout as a pitcher in two different leagues as he blanked Stelio's 15-0.

As for the bats in this offensive game, well for Rocco's, Chcek Duggan had three hits including a homer, while, Rich and Jimmy Rappolli, Tony Butler, Bob Peterson and Rob Ferguson all had two hits.

Stelio's 10
Lions Club 7

IT'S ABOUT TIME! Stelio's finally won a game 10-7 to Lions Club.

John Engdahl led the charge with two hits, while, Jim Swieczynski and Ernie Poole had five hits between them for the Lions.

Rocco's 14
Charles Auto Body 7

Rocco's jumped out to a 12-1 lead and held on for a 14-7 victory behind the hitting of Tony Butler (3-4), Chuck Duggan and Larry Cushing (2-4) and Bill Naimo and Joe Franchesi (2-3).

Once again Kevin French and Jimmy Hatchey led the aluminum for Charles as they both were 2-3, again.

Uptown Deli 21
Shea's Concrete 2

It was all Uptown as they put 21 runs on the scoreboard for a whopping victory.

Bobby Hogg, Pat Taylor and Marc Reed led with the powerful bats with eight hits between them with Taylor going deep. Reed went the distance on the hill, looking sharp.

Both softball teams come away as champions

The Wildcat Girls 14 softball team and the under-12 softball teams both came away with championships from this past weekend's tournaments.

In Fitchburg, the 14 and under girls fought rough weather and a tough field of teams to capture the tournament trophy finishing this weekend with a 6-1 record.

The young ladies played four games on Saturday, defeating Lakeville 1-0, Millbury 13-1 and Central Mass. Diamonds 17-0. Their lone loss came at the hands of Leominster 6-4.

In Sunday's elimination round, the Cats came back to defeat Lakeville again 3-1, then defeated Worcester 3-0 and finally defeated the Merrimack Valley Magic 9-1 to capture the tournament championship.

Playing well on offense for the young Wildcats were Kristen Thomas with 13 hits and 12 rbi's; Lauren McCarthy, seven hits and six rbi's and Michelle McGonagle with seven hits and five stolen bases.

Defensively the mainstay of the infield again was Megan Sullivan who did not commit an error all weekend along with Charlene Tamilio and Maura Lynch in the outfield.

Robin Mainini turned in her best weekend of the summer by posting a 3-1 record with strong performances in the semifinal and final games, going the distance in both games.

The young ladies are off this weekend and then will travel to Taunton on August 18-20 to compete in their final tournament of the summer.

In Taunton, the Wildcat 12 and unders came away with the co-championship trophy having to share the title with Somerset due to a rain shortened tournament the young ladies were undefeated on their side of the bracket with a 3-0-1 record while Somerset was 3-0 in the other bracket because a final playoff could not be played them were then crowned co-champs.

Playing well for the 12 and unders were offensive heroes Colleen Cahill, Jacqui Rubino, Candice Sousa and Sara Collings while defensive standouts were Katie Sullivan, Jennifer Gillis and Lisa Antonangeli.

The 12 and unders are now off until their final tournament in Tewksbury at the end of August.

Baystate Marathon coming October 15

The seventh annual Baystate Marathon and half marathon will be held on Sunday, October 15. Start time is 8 a.m. at the Greater Lowell Regional Vocational Technical High School in Tyngsboro; with emphasis on qualifying for the 100th running of the Boston Marathon, Baystate is poised to take the lead as "the race" to qualify for Boston.

The Baystate Marathon was born as a result of the demise of the Boston Peace Marathon; another Boston Marathon qualifier was needed and the search was on for a site and course.

Members of the Greater Lowell Road Runners identified a know flat and fast course. Some improvements were made and the start and finish lines were changes.

This marathon, the Baystate, has been chartered with the main goal of allowing as many people the opportunity to qualify for Boston as possible. It has consistently been the fastest course for average finishing times per runner year after year. Almost eight minutes faster last year than second place.

To most runners this is the difference between qualifying for Boston or not. Faster qualifying times also ensure a better starting place in Boston. What makes Baystate so fast? Perhaps the 8 a.m. start time ensuring cooler temperatures (around the low 50s) lessening dehydration.

Perhaps the flatness of the course running along the Merrimack River through three scenic New England towns; twice around for the marathon and once around for the half marathon. Perhaps it's that friend, spouse or significant other helping the runner with their pace or watching and cheering along the route.

This year we will have a number of amenities such as "kids fun runs," American Heart Association 5K walk, health fair and runners' expo at Lowell General Hospital; a pasta dinner at the Vocational School all on Saturday, October 14. Then on Sunday, October 15, the races with post race refreshments and awards ceremony.

Also close by is the Lowell Heritage State Park, the Minuteman State Park and beautiful New England fall foliage in full spectacular color. There should be something for everyone!

With the support of UB Networks of Andover and Lowell General Hospital as sponsors joining Adidas a wonderful time should be had by all!

CONVERTIBLE TERM POLICY

QUESTION: What is meant by convertible term insurance and what would be the advantages of using this option?

ANSWER: Simply stated, it means that the insured has the right to exchange the term contract for insurance on a permanent plan. The phrase "permanent plan" usually means whole-life or endowment insurance. This can be done without evidence of insurability.

Convertible term insurance enables a person to get — in the same policy — temporary insurance, while at the same time it gives the option of permanent coverage. You are thus guaranteed access to the latter type of insurance.

A CONVERTIBLE TERM policy means that you can convert your term insurance to whole life.

Track Clinic held at Tewksbury High School

During the last week of July, 51 athletes took part in the Tewksbury Track Clinic sponsored by the Community Education Department at Tewksbury Memorial High School.

With the help of several present and former members of the TMHS track teams and assistant coach Jennifer Brooks, coach Bob MacDougall helped the participants improve their running technique and learn the relay baton exchange, the long jump, the hurdles and the shot put.

The last day of the clinic featured a track meet between the Red and the White teams. Both teams psyched for the event big time and even made banners proclaiming their victorious intentions.

In the end, it all came down to the relays and the Whites needed to overcome a seven point deficit to win. Aimee LeBoeuf, Kerry Jenkins, Kristen Mills and Andrea Toland brought them home winners in the girls 4 x 220 relay to make up five points.

Then the whole meet came down to a thrilling duel between John Drinkwater of the Reds and Pat Dooling of the Whites. Dooling won the lean at the line inches giving the relay of Brian Bastien, Joe Dooling, Jim Reinold and Pat Dooling the win and the overall White Team the victory.

Tewksbury softball team crowned champs

The Tewksbury Girls Softball ten traveled to Hudson, N.H. this past weekend and returned with the championship trophy.

After splitting their first two games, a win against Souhegan Valley and a loss to Merrimack, the girls came together to stage a great comeback against previously undefeated Salem, sending them to the finals against host Hudson.

Leaving nothing to chance, the Redmen scored early and often to pound out a convincing 10-1 championship win.

Trivia is back

After a couple of disappearing weeks, the baseball trivia questions are back. With football and hockey starting up very quickly, those questions will be arriving also.

This week's questions have a lot to do with the present Red Sox. Hopefully, you will catch on to the resemblances.

1). What is the greatest number of wins recorded by the Bosox in one season?

2). What was the nickname of the 1967 Red Sox?

3). Which Sox pitcher has the highest single-season win percentage?

4). Name the Sox pitcher who led the American League in ERA on four separate occasions?

5). Name the Sox pitcher who appeared in the most games in one season?

6). Roger Clemens set his major league record of 20 strikeouts against Seattle on April 29, 1986. How many hits did he give up, and what was the final score?

7). Roger Clemens is the third player to win the Cy Young Award two years in a row. Who are the other hurlers?

8). Name the four starting pitchers and the three who started the three consecutive shutout games in Toronto in September of 1990?

9). Who was the first Sox player to lead the American League in home runs?

10). Name the Sox pitcher who was televised without a towel on in the lockerroom when the Sox clinched the pennant in 1986?

Wilmington Recreation Notebook

by Dorothy McCarthy
Wilmington Playgroupers' sand sculpture of the Elvis Stamp, took the grand prize, winning in three out of five categories of the sand sculpture competition held last Tuesday at Crane's Beach.

A group of leaders, volunteers, playgroupers and families journeyed to Crane's Beach in Ipswich for the annual sand sculpture competition.

Each year, various playgrounds and summer camps across Mass. go to Crane's Beach to show off their artistic talents by creating a sand sculpture that fits within a designated theme. With this year's theme being "Musical Moments," Wilmington playgroupers, volunteers and leaders felt that the Elvis Stamp would be a perfect entry. As soon as they hit the beach everyone started digging. A huge square trench was constructed while a group of Wilmingtonites stood in the center of the square that was being formed. They pushed the sand around, created the outline for Elvis, and began shaping his features.

After what seemed like an eternity of labor in the hot summer sun, the Elvis Stamp had taken shape. Leaders and volunteers put the finishing touches on the masterpiece by sprinkling dry tempera paints on the sculpture to make details and features more prominent. Finally it was complete.

As judges walked around to view the various entries, Wilmington blasted some of Elvis' most famous hits.

The sand sculpture scores were calculated almost immediately, and a representative group from each town's playground or summer camp was requested at the judging station.

As each entry was announced, Wilmington's representative grew more and more anxious. At last, Wilmington's name was announced. Strangely enough, however, the Crane's Beach sand sculpture coordinator interrupted, saying that Wilmington had to be "saved for last for special reasons." Puzzled, the Wilmington representatives waited.

Eventually, Wilmington was announced again, local playgroupers won the "Grand Prize" breaking all records. Awards were won in three out of five categories including "Best Use of Theme," "Most Original," and "Most complicated."

Playgroupers, volunteers and leaders celebrated by taking a refreshing swim in the ocean.

Last week's playground events where some of the most exciting yet! First, playgroupers started off the week making Express-it bumper stickers. Children got a chance to let the world know a little bit about themselves by decorating blank bumper stickers. If you see a home made sticker on someone's bumper around town, you know you've run into a pretty creative playgroup.

Thanks to Jerry Schnare of Tootsie's Kitchen, playgroupers and town hall employees enjoyed delicious sundaes on Sundae Day. Trays were piled high with ice cream, hot fudge, strawberries and whipped cream donated by Tootsie's. Playgroupers couldn't eat fast enough as the summer's heat began to melt their ice cream. Content but sticky, participants were thrilled to have such a treat on such a hot day.

The Wilmington Police Department and the Silver Lake staff did it again! Despite the clouds on Thursday, Police Assoc. Beach Day was a complete success. Playgroupers and townspeople gathered at Silver Lake for a day of swim races, beach games, and sand sculpture competition, and a barbecue, all sponsored by the Police Association.

This family has brought home 29 championships

by James Pote

Usually when a someone is a year-and-a-half old, they are learning to walk or maybe they are spitting out their first "Mommy" or "Daddy". Imagine bowling at 18 months old!

Usually when a person is six years old, they are learning the alphabet and enjoying the first grade.

Ever imagine winning an International Bowling Competition with an average score of 101 for five strings?

That's the tale of 12-year-old Jeffrey Surette of Tewksbury. Three members of the family, Jeffrey, his ten-year-old sister Kristen, and his 40-year-old father, Tom, have combined to bring home 29 candlepin bowling championships - 24 of those belonging to Jeffrey.

The entire Surette family is very familiar with the sport. Tom's father, Peter, started out his three sons, Tom, Pete Jr., and Jeff with the game. Tom brought home three championships, in 1981, 1982 and 1983, including being on "Candlepins for Cash" with Bob Gamere, twice.

Like father, like son and daughter, Tom then taught his children how to become good bowlers. Tom introduced bowling to his oldest of three children, Jeffrey, at the tender age of just 18 months. Tom would take his son down to Candlewood Lanes in North Reading, where Tom had learned how to play from his own father. But, Tom's only advice to Jeffrey was to stay behind the black line - and from that point on, Jeffrey took on his own approach, which has earned him a lot of success.

"Both of them do pretty well - it just comes natural to them," said Tom Surette.

"It's a lot of fun on Saturdays - especially since Jeffrey always beats my father," he continued.

From those childhood days with Jeffrey, to now, the days continue at Candlewood once a week for the entire family. Tom currently works there on Saturdays and that is when both Jeffrey and Kristen enjoy their practice time. Jeffrey and his grandfather throw a few strings themselves, as do Kristen and their mother, Jean.

Whether the practice is just to warm-up for tournaments or just to beat a grandfather, most of all, Jeffrey and Kristen bowl for fun - and that's the way it will always be.

"It's a lot of fun," said both Jeffrey and Kristen, who both also play baseball, while Jeffrey plays hockey for a third sport. "I like getting big scores and I like to compete," added Jeffrey, with consensus from his sister.

"It's a lot of fun watching them," said Tom Surette. "The tournaments are organized really well and it's a great atmosphere - it's very enjoyable."

Jeffrey didn't enter a tournament until he was six years old. At that time, Tom's brother Peter suggested that Tom should enter his son in a tournament just to see how he would do. Jeffrey won the six-year-old Midget International Division of five strings, for a combined score of 506, which was good for an average of 101.2 and of course, first place.

Since then, Jeffrey has mastered the game of bowling - his bedroom is a showcase of trophies that would make any professional athlete jealous.

Case in point: his accomplishments:

- Massachusetts Singles Champion in 1991 (average score of 97.8), '93 (104.0) and '95 (122.2).
- International Singles Champion in 1991 (105.2), '93 (105.4) and '94 (118.0).
- Massachusetts Doubles Champion in 1990 (with Chris Olsen - the rest with Ben Friedman of Saugus) '92 (106.2), '93 (102.4), '94 (123.2) and '95 (117.2).
- International Doubles Champion with Friedman in 1992 (104.8) and '94 (111.2).
- Massachusetts All Events Champion (five strings of singles and doubles and three-string team) in 1990 (100.8), '91 (95.3), '92 (103.7), '93 (104.4), '94 (118.7) and '95 (115.9).
- International All Events Champion in 1991 (102.4), '92 (102.0), '93 (107.9) and '94 (114.0).

This year's International Competitions are still to come in November.

In his 1994 Massachusetts All Events Championship, Jeffrey was so impressive with his total score of 1,544 that he surpassed all of the scores from every division ranging from the Midget Division all the way up the ladder to the Senior Division which is up to 17 year olds.

Since he is just 12 years old right now, Jeffrey has to wait six more years to become the second Surette to bowl on national television. As he is following in his father's footsteps, it seems as if Kristen is following in her older brother's.

Kristen is a late bloomer in bowling compared her brother. She just started two years ago and she has already walked away with two championships.

In 1994, at age nine, she was the International Candlepin Singles Champion with a score of 469, which averages out to 93.8 over five strings of play.

And already this year, she has become the Massachusetts Singles Champion with a score of 488 - which not only constitutes an improvement of 19 more pins, but also raises her tournament average up to 97.6 - to give her an overall average of 95.7.

"She does pretty well," said her brother, Jeffrey.

But according to Kristen, "I'm better [than he is -ed.]," she said jokingly.

More Wilmington Recreation notes

Phil O'Brien, Melissa Parris, Troy Perry, Mike Perry, Brian Aldrich and Tia Marden. It was difficult to rate the 20 different sand sculptures, but judges finally decided on Powers the Alligator, Snow White and Sleeping Beauty and Tweety.

Last week's playground closed with a trip to the Billerica Flick. Children chose either The Indian in the Cupboard, Free Willy II or Operation Dumbo Drop. As Siskel and Ebert say, the day was "two thumbs up!"

The playground activities require planning and organization. Leaders rely on volunteers like Janeen Neal and Lindsay Bruno, Volunteers of the Week, to make sure that playgrounders understand and follow directions of events and activities, leaders also look to playgrounders such as Melissa Parris and Erica Layton, Playgrounders of the Week. People such as these help foster a cooperative and safe environment.

YOUR REAL ESTATE OUIJA BOARD

Realtors can provide you with information about how the local market has performed historically, but can't predict what the market will do next month or next year.

Historically real estate has been a superb long-term investment and many people have created fortunes on short-term investments in hot markets. If you are considering an investment in real property, ask a realtor whom you trust to help you work out your strategy. Remember that the local market will be influenced by things beyond your control, such as interest rates, economic trends, local employment opportunities, and the demand for the availability of rental housing. All of these are subject to change, so timing is crucial. A slow market can mean real values for buyers, but a fast market could heat up for several years, and you could be priced out of the market if you delay. While your realtor can't predict the future, he or she can help you interpret the present.

For professional advice on buying or selling real estate, please drop by our office in The Starwood Building at 299 Main Street, or call us at 657-8444.

Gary LaPierre

'On the Loose'

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

He boasts "a face made for radio," enjoys a reputation as one of New England's 'premier' radio legends, fills in occasionally for Paul Harvey, and speaks in sound bites.

Gary LaPierre lives locally, broadcasts nationally, and beams through 'BZ-radio' "into more bathrooms than you can imagine."

Whether loose on the air or up close in person, he doesn't dance around any issues.

"You may not agree with a single thing I say but that's not important if I've at least caused you to think about something or have a different perspective," he says, in his travels about the towns.

"I use pretty bad language at 3 o'clock in the morning. I don't like getting up at 3 o'clock in morning. And yet once I'm up and rolling I look forward to going to work because I know I'm going to have an exciting day. Television has a certain glamorous side to it with a couple of dollars that go with it. But I'm participating in history and I wouldn't change that for a moment."

'What's wrong with this picture?'

"CNN," he says, "the whole world watches CNN, headline news. You can probably name some of the people you see and it's on 24 hours a day. Great source of information. Those guys are doing a 'national' newscast but they're not paying them the big bucks."

"CNN is an absolute loser from a money standpoint. Liz Walker has more money taken out of her paycheck in taxes than those guys get in a year. What's wrong with this picture?"

About "some TV reporting": "It seems terribly juvenile at times, doesn't it?" he says. "But somebody's got to do it. I don't want to do it but you know when a kid gets killed in a car accident, God forbid, invariably newspaper people are going to be at the police station saying, 'Where does he live?'. Some reporter's got to go knock on the door and say, 'Can I get a picture of your son who's been killed?'. There are certain aspects of journalism I absolutely despise. Thank God, I've grown to the point where I don't have to do those things. They basically don't let me out any more. I'm at the station all the time."

"But some of those things do seem terribly silly. 'How does it make you feel?' How do you think it makes me feel?"

"Don't talk to him." When you watch the '60 Minutes'-type things ... When you see Mike Wallace coming through your back door with a camera crew, you don't want to chat with him, trust me. You just don't because he's not there to help you in your run for the School Committee. He's there because he's got something he's going to do. But people, people, use your heads, don't talk to him. Listen to me - I'm a reporter saying, 'Don't talk to him.'

On the future of legitimate news

I think those legitimate news organizations are still there. But there's been such a proliferation of others, like the 60 channels on your TV. There used to be only

LaPierre to S-4

GARY LAPIERRE is in the news, on the news and making news. He 'much prefers' radio but is about to become the subject of a television spot - about radio legends; and likes being on the loose - although 'they basically don't let me out' of the station any more. After 32 years on 'BZ' radio, he's not thinking of retiring - and is anything but shy.

My Cousin is a worried bank teller. The bank examiner is coming next week and he's short two toasters and, a set of dishes. Dean Matin said that he shook hands with Cardinal O'Connor and his whole right side went sober.

You now Folks, with women wearing slacks, white shirts and neckties and some wearing earrings and hair down to their shoulders, I have trouble guessing who is who and what is what. The only place I can figure it out is in a nudist camp.

At a New Year's eve party, Dennis Tully said to a beautiful Blond bombshell he was dancing with, "if I tried to kiss you, would you call for help?" She smiled and said, "only if you need it."

I said to Kevin Murphy, "you look familiar." "I'm not a bit surprised," Kevin replied, "my mother tells me that every time she sees me."

Folks, please don't stand near a church door when the Mass is about to end. You may be carried along with a wave of people that resemble at the rush of people at a Filene's Bargain Basement Sale. I remember when a gentleman turned around and shook my hand saying, "Peace be with you."

Five minutes later he nearly mowed me down with his fire engine red convertible as he raced to be the first one out of the church's parking lot.

'The Circus Is Coming to Town'

THE ARTURO'S, known world wide in the circus business, are making their first tour of the Eastern United States with the 1995 edition of Vidbel's Olde Tyme Circus. Sandio and Engelbert are fifth generation circus performers from one of Old Mexico's most respected circus families. Their balancing act, passed down from generation to generation, requires precision, body control and concentration. Vidbel's Circus will give performances in Reading on Sunday, August 13 at 2:00 pm and 4:30 pm. The colorful red and white striped circus tent will be set up at 8 am Sunday. Reduced price tickets are being sold by members of the Reading Rotary, the sponsoring organization in Reading, and at some local stores.

For the fourth year, Reading Rotary will be sponsoring the Vidbel Olde Tyme Circus as it puts up the familiar red and white big top for performances on Sunday, August 13.

The Vidbel's one ring, big top experience is one that will brighten the hearts of children of all ages. This intimate setting allows spectators to experience the circus in a way that has been forgotten by most.

"There will be laughs and thrills that will make memories that will last forever," said Jessie Mraz, Circus chair. "Vidbel provides a clean and wholesome form of entertainment for families and individuals, this family event is very important to the Reading Rotary Club. Every smile on a small face is worth it."

The circus big top will be placed behind the Reading High

About The Towns

by Phyllis Nissen

She's still clowning around

Thank you, Judy

For the following information - and food ... for thought.

The Lynnfield Spotlighters will hold a country fair and flea market on Saturday, September 16th (raindate September 17th) on the Lynnfield Centre Common from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

"It's a fundraiser to benefit our scholarship fund," says Judy Valentine, who can't stop clowning around. "We'll have a clown, entertainment, refreshments, and fun for the whole family. 'Bagels the Clown' will be making an appearance with his creative balloon sculptures, and table space is still available.

"And that same evening," she continues, "we'll celebrate with a country-western dance featuring DJ Wayne Jordan."

The dance will kick off at 7 p.m. at the Lynnfield Community Church at 735 Salem Street and will continue until 11:30 p.m. Admission is $7.50, including refreshments, and all the fun you can have.

For information on the fair and flea market, call Kathy at (617)334-2706 or Judy at (617)334-3249. For information on the dance, call Joe at (508)468-2352 or Judy, aka Bozo the Clown's assistant.

Channels 4, 5 and 7, six o'clock at night. Now you've got a choice of 38 different channels, and you have room for the 'Hard Copy's' and the 'Inside Editions' and the Oprahs and Donahues and Geraldos, and who's the other one, Connie Chung's husband? Maury. Maury! Do you suppose Maury goes home at night, 'Connie, let me tell you what my day was like?' Give me a break. I'm surprised she even talks to him.

"WBZ is still a dominant radio station in this town. WBZ used to own this town because other people weren't doing the sorts of things we do. I've been there from playing Frank Sinatra to country music to a talk show station to the Dave Maynards of the world to rock and roll. I was covering the Beatles in 1964 on WBZ, and now we're an all-news station. It changed our audience a little bit but we're still the highest rated station.

"I think quality people are still there but you've got to search them out. You still find some great things on Channel 2, the public information station. You still find some great things even on the main three channels. 'Arts and Entertainment,' some of the cable stations available - I think it's there. It's just not quite as obvious. I think we'll always produce Brinkleys and George Wills but there's such a proliferation of people and individuals and so many of those programs that a lot of those programs are not going to have the opportunity to wait for the seasoned veterans to come along."

Switching channels

"The balance (between hard copy and hard news), I think, is not there. It's all been thrown out of whack by the numbers that continue to grow. 'Let's do a program on this. I'm going to open up another radio station. Another network.' And now there's the sports network. We have an entertainment network. We have ABC news network in our radio station. And we have CBS news in our television side, the Channel 4-side. ABC news has four networks - the ABC entertainment division, the ABC news division, and I don't even remember what they call the other two. We subscribe to only two of those sources because they are the best as far as news for our purposes. CBS has several different news networks within the network itself.

"It all has to do with diversifying. Corporations all over America are doing it all over the place. I work for Westinghouse Broadcasting. Westinghouse Broadcasting is owned by Westinghouse Electric. My parent company makes light bulbs. They make elevators. They make plutonium."

'They know you're stupid'

"I've done both television and radio, and I prefer radio. I have a face made for radio. It's paid my mortgage for a lot of years. I prefer it for a lot of reasons. To me, the writing and the presentation in radio news has got to be so far superior to anything in television or in newspapers that it's scary. I've got one shot to kick you right between the ears. Television, they've got pictures. And they have your undivided attention. You sit down in front of that TV. You look at it. You watch them speak. They do a story about the phone company. They know you're stupid so they put up a picture of a telephone. Newspapers - you don't understand the story in a newspaper, go back and read it again. I don't have any of those luxuries. None of us. I've only got one shot at you. The writing has got to be that much better. The presentation has got to be that much better. And I consider that one major big challenge.

"The television side of things has a bigger impact, of course it does, because it has that extra dimension. Yet I do three television shots a day starting at 5:30 in the morning, the last one's at 6:30. This started a little more than a year ago ... A lot of people don't even know that. My wife, if I hadn't told her, still wouldn't know it ... but it's incredible since I started that thing how many people do know it ... As far as impact in terms of number of people, I reach far more people on the radio but the impact on television is greater because people might recognize you ... It definitely has a role to play and a service to do but you really can't compare it to radio.

"When I'm trying to break a news story in the morning, I'm not competing with Channel 4. I'm not trying to get the story before the 'Globe' gets it or the 'Herald.' They all serve very different purposes. My relationship with you is going to be very, very surfacey. Very, very surfacey. Just names, who, what, where, when, that's it. You want addresses and phone numbers and ages, go buy a newspaper. They do that. They will say '26 year-old Charley and a four-year-old friend ...' I'm not going to give you that because that's not important. Are you sure he was 24, I think maybe he was 25? Go get that in the newspaper. You want pictures of this whole thing. Go watch television tonight. They'll show you pictures of it. I'm just going to give you enough, I hope, to start your day, a very cursory look at things, very platonic relationship here, and then if you want more, you have to go other places to get it. There might be some competition from an advertising standpoint. I don't know and I don't want to know. Our sales people might be trying to convince Ernie Boch to spend $100,000 with us instead of $150,000 with the 'Globe.' There may be those competitive-type things but not in the news business. They're apples and oranges, I guess.

"I very much prefer radio. I will never give it up. I've had many opportunities to go into television on a full-time basis. I'll do as much television as they want me to do as long as I can continue to do my radio thing because I just love it. I've been getting up at 3 o'clock in the morning for 32 years and I pull out of Reading at 3:30 every morning and I look forward to going to work.

"How many people can say that?"

informal meeting with you," notes Assistant Director Marcia Markwardt. "This informational interview may take place in your office, over lunch, or in your home. If distance or time does not allow a meeting, you might arrange a telephone interview. I want to stress that these meetings are not requests for jobs, but rather are opportunities for individuals to get advice about potential occupations, internship possibilities, or job search strategies."

Alumni may also interact with current students through an 'internship' program which helps students explore careers by linking them with alumni sponsors over winter recess for a "career exploration" that can last from one day to two weeks.

Hurricane Robert?

Dr. Robert Burpee, Reading High Class of '59, is the new director of the National Hurricane Center.

Peter Pan syndrome

We suspected that it's taking kids longer to grow up these days, what with them flocking home to empty nests even with college degrees and real jobs ... and the following lines in a local paper prove just that.

The lines relate to the Woburn Court's Probation Program which involves juvenile offenders in community service such as a graffiti patrol, an opportunity for youngsters to clean up their acts. Just over a year old in Woburn, the program, according to Probation Officer Kevin Meaney, is expanding into Stoneham, Reading and Wilmington.

Recently, a group of four helped clean up half a dozen sites in one local town where the newspaper reports the "youths" ranged "from age 12-30."

"About The Towns" covers recent events in the 13-town Middlesex East area. Because Middlesex East deadlines are early, please check the front sections of this paper for up-to-date information about your city or town. We also welcome original material - please send it to Phyllis Nissen, "About The Towns," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867

Most of you are familiar with the One Arm Bandit, the "Slot Machine." There are winning combinations like, "Three pears," three plums" or "three cherries." Well, on a recent visit to Las Vegas, I noticed special machines for senior citizens to play. You're a winner when, "three PRUNES" show up."

I will never be a good poker player because, I advertise my emotions by the expressions on my face. For instance, Kathy can tell instantly when I've been to my sister Maureen's house. I generally come home talking to myself, my face is flushed and I don't even say "Hello" to my golden Retriever.

Well!" Kathy shouted, "what the heck was the argument about this time?"

Little Danny, who is about one and a half year's old, is just learning to walk. "So, what's the big deal?" Kathy asked. "Well, Maureen extended her arms for Danny to walk to her and when he had just about reached her, Maureen pulled her arms back and Danny fell flat on his face."

When I rushed over to try to pick the poor Kid up, my sister pushed my away. "Leave him alone," she exclaimed, "he has to learn to get up by himself!" "But-t-t," I stuttered, "you tricked him by pulling your arms away." "Listen here Fatso," she screamed, "that's the way life is and the sooner he learns it the better" Danny picked himself up but he didn't stop crying.

"Aren't you going to console the poor Kid?" "Nope" Maureen snapped. "When he gets tired of crying he'll stop." "For crying out loud (No pun intended) he's only one and a half years old gee, Ma never brought us up this way." "Look you old Goat, the world is a lot different now and, besides 'Four Eyes' he's my kid not yours so mind your own, Bee's Wax." I came home with one of those no.89 TV Headaches.

What my brothers and sisters had was a father for discipline and a mother to run to for consolation.

'Typically-developing' children wanted

Deadline Friday

The deadline for submitting applications to North Reading's SEEM Integrated Preschool Class for three- to five-year-olds has been extended to Friday, August 11th. The class will be held at the Little School, and "typically-developing" children are being sought to participate in the program.

Children will attend morning sessions from 8:15 to 11:15 or afternoon sessions from noon to 3:00 p.m., Monday through Thursday of each week during the school year, which follows the school calendar. The anticipated start date is Monday, September 11th, and weekly tuition is $40.

Each class is designed to include a balance of children with individual education plans as well as those typically developing.

In the event of oversubscription, a lottery will be conducted.

For information and enrollment forms, call Pupil Personnel Services at the North Reading Middle School between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. during the week.

Burlington Players auditions for "Twelve Angry Men"

The Burlington Players will hold auditions for Reginald Rose's "Twelve Angry Men" on Monday and Tuesday, August 28 and 29, at 7 p.m. at the Park Playhouse, off Rt. 95/128 and Winn Street in Burlington. "Twelve Angry Men" offers twelve challenging roles and is open to both men and women. For more information call (617) 272-2524.

"Twelve Angry Men" originated as a television play on CBS's Studio One in the mid-fifties. The fascinating and powerful drama, set in the jury room immediately after closing arguments in a murder case, is even more relevant today than

Changes in Wakefield

Wakefield Superintendent of Schools Terrance Holmes recently discussed several upcoming changes in the Wakefield schools.

One critical change, according to the Wakefield edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle," is the Atwell-Galvin Jr. High School consolidation into one large middle school. The process, according to Holmes, is expected to take three years, hard work, planning, and funding.

Some of the work will involve rearranging office and classroom space in anticipation of a central office (near the doors facing the civic center.)

Class size is a consideration as is a seven-period schedule, time and learning concerns, and a name for the new facility.

New Galvin Principal Marge McGrath has chosen Dr. Paula Mullen and Dr. Robert Bennett as assistant principals.

On the elementary level, the school facilities study committee is narrowing 43 options to three or four. The big debate, according to the "Chronicle," will concern whether to have three or four elementary schools, and whether or not to include the fifth grade in them. Because the middle school will have enough space for the fifth graders, Holmes says he is leaning toward that option.

Possible renovations could involve any of the following elementary schools: Dolbeare, Doyle, Yeuell, Franklin, Greenwood or Woodville. The main concern is qualifying for 64 percent state reimbursement.

Another change involves the addition of a director of curriculum and instruction.

According to Richard Barker, Wakefield's "administration assistant" for business affairs, in the "Chronicle," the state has awarded an extra $50 per student to the town on top of the $25 given last year; and $25 of the $50 will go toward professional development.

Another change concerns team leaders of academic disciplines - formerly known as department heads. Principals will now choose team leaders on a one-year basis, paying them extra for their work.

Holmes noted that most people do not realize that adding one student to a classroom is a big economic and educational issue.

It's Hodges at $56,000

Superintendent Dr. Richard Palermo has announced that the new assistant principal of the Lynnfield Middle School is Richard Hodges of Groveland, an English teacher since 1979 at Hamilton-Wenham Regional High School.

If you'd like to read about your favorite school, student or teacher in "School Notes," please send school newsletters and other relevant information to Phyllis Nissen, "School Notes," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867.

GENERAL HELP

MOVIES

by Rochelle Flynn

Virtuosity starring Denzel Washington, Kelly Lynch, Russell Crowe, Stephen Spinella, William Forsythe, Louise Fletcher. Directed by Brett Leonard. Written by Eric Bernt. Produced by Gary Lucchesi. Rated R.

This just isn't the summer for science fiction. The only decent entry into the genre has been "Waterworld," an entertaining enough flick, but hardly industry shattering. Both "Judge Dredd" and "Johnny Mnemonic" fizzled in a blur of cyber-punk activity, and "Virtuosity" is following their lead.

There are a couple of things going for this flick, most notably Denzel Washington as Parker Barnes, an incarcerated cop released to fight the virtual assassin let out of his computer by a mad scientist. Also a plus is the most interesting Russell Crowe as Sid 6.7, a computer-generated criminal. And the action is both heart-pumping and non-stop.

But you have to leap over too many breaches of logic in the story to become totally involved. It is also very choppy, as the editing is rough and the narrative structure uneven.

Set in L.A., only four years in the future, the government has developed a virtual reality prototype as a training device for the police. Washington's character is a convict selected as a guinea pig to test the program, and he is very good at it. So good that when Sid escapes his two-dimensional prison, he wants to play with Barnes in the real world.

Released from prison and paired with a criminal psychologist (Kelly Lynch,) Barnes begins a bloody cat and mouse game that leaves a trail of bodies across the city. There is an interesting psychological aspect added to the mix, because one of Sid's rotten, multi-personality components is the man who landed Barnes in jail.

Director Brett Leonard ("Lawnmower Man") knows his way around the special effects department, but allowed most of the film's potential to slip away. There may be a lot of interesting stuff up on the screen, but we just can't buy most of it. Why is it set only a few years in the future? Fifty years would have been a safer bet. Time lapses make no sense. At one point, there is a two-hour limit placed on Barnes, yet he accomplishes an incredible amount in that interval.

The reason for allowing the criminal psychologist to pair up with Barnes is extremely flimsy, except that the producers must have wanted to add a woman to the story. And Lynch is just never believable. Not only is there no chemistry between her and Washington, but you can't accept that this egghead is suddenly capable of car chases and shoot-em-ups.

You could write this one off if it weren't for the special effects, which are as intense as they are fun. And Washington turns in a focused, emotional performance that is matched by Crowe's whose wholesome good looks are especially creepy when paired with his effectively chilling stare. Crowe manages to come across as evil incarnate, but with a slightly robotic edge. He's a vicious Pinocchio who needed a better vehicle to display his immense powers of destruction.

Waterworld is not the soggy disaster we'd been lead to believe by all that advance publicity. It has a few glitches, but for the most part, it is primo summer fun. Imaginative and full of adventure, it takes us outside of ourselves and plunges us into a completely different time and place. Kevin Costner is a mutant drifter who roams the watery, featureless future. Dennis Hopper is the outrageous villain after the little girl in Costner's protection. Exciting on a visual level, and inventive enough for us to close our eyes to the glitches in logic, this is well worth seeing. Rated PG-13. 1/2

Something to Talk About is a charming romantic comedy that is occasionally a little too pat, but delightful nonetheless. Set in a wealthy, Georgia horse family in which the women are bred to have low expectations, Julia Roberts is the daughter who breaks out of the pattern of marrying, and sticking by skirt-chasing husbands. The top-notch cast includes Gena Rowlands, Robert Duvall, Dennis Quaid, and Kyra Sedgwick, and directed by Lasse Hallstrom. Callie

("Thelma and Louise") Khouri's script may be a bit sentimental, but it's rife with humor and certainly makes you feel good. Rated R. 1/2

Free Willy 2: The Adventure Home is better than you'd expect from a sequel to that sweet 1993 sleeper. Most of the original cast is back, with the added treat of cinematographer Laszlo Kovacs. He makes up for the film's hokeyness with gorgeous scenery and beautifully shot water ballets starring playful whales. In this outing, Willy is reunited with the now teenaged Jesse (Jason James Richter) just before an environmental disaster threatens Willy's life. It works best before the melodrama sets in, but there is plenty of adventure for the pre-pubescent crowd, as well as several charming scenes. Rated PG ***

The Net is a fast-paced, paranoid techno-thriller starring Sandra Bullock as a computer whiz-kid who finds herself unwittingly drawn into the dangerous world of computer terrorism. There is plenty of action, even some that is a little too coincidental, but the real chills come from the very believable fact that someone could just be eliminated, at least on paper, by the push of a computer button. Bullock gives another strong performance, matched by Jeremy Northam as the charming, lethal hacker hot on her trail. Rated PG-13. ***

Nine Months is one of those flicks you may want to catch on cable, as it doesn't deserve a trip to the theater. In fact, it may have just breezed by unnoticed without the naughty-off-screen antics of leading actor Hugh Grant. He is more than a little unsympathetic as a child psychologist with Peter Pan Syndrome who can't handle the unplanned pregnancy of long-time gal pal Julianne Moore. Director/writer Chris Columbus is heavy-handed where sophistication and subtlety was called for and Grant is not versatile enough to make us care. Moore, and co-star Joan Cusack, turn in stronger performances, but you can't escape the general goofiness of the plot. Robin Williams lights up the screen in a small role as a Russian obstetrician thrilled to work with human patients, having tired of simians. Rated PG-13. **

Clueless is a true surprise, especially if you expected absolutely nothing from this send-up of the trials and tribulations of a pampered Beverly Hills teenager. Writer/director

Amy Heckerling cleverly pokes fun at those privileged youths without getting nasty about it. Alicia Silverstone is perfect in the title role; she's pouty, sexy, and very funny as a well-meaning, rather dim teen. The best thing to be said is that this is every bit as good as Heckerling's "Fast Times at Ridgemont High." Rated PG-13. 1/2

First Knight, enjoyable and unabashedly romantic, just doesn't get under your skin the way it should. Sean Connery is the wise and strong King Arthur, Julia Ormond is the majestic Guinevere who admires her king but lusts for Richard Gere's Lancelot. A visual masterpiece, this film almost makes up for its lack of emotion with lush green, burnished silvers, Celtic crosses, and candlelight processions. There is no Merlin or sorcery, just three people caught up in a tragic love triangle that weakens their fight against an evil invader. Though lacking an emotional depth that could have transformed a good movie into a great one, romantics should still enjoy this, even if they never quite believe it. Rated PG-13. ***

The Indian in the Cupboard is as winsome a picture as you'll ever encounter. Adapted from the beloved children's book, this imaginative flick never panders to the kids and is so well-written adults should love it. Hal Scardino plays a young boy who is given a cupboard that turns out to be magic - whatever he places in it comes to life. But creating time creatures brings with it an awesome responsibility. Lively and funny, yet enhanced by an unexpected depth, this is one summer fantasy that should not be missed. Rated PG. ****
